

FRPA Training Note #06-04
FRPA and Native allotments
April 5, 2006

How are native allotments addressed by the FRPA?

The BIA, or their tribal contractor, manages native allotments in trust. They are considered and treated as federal land under the FRPA.

Some allotment parcels have been removed from trust status. When this occurs they become unrestricted land that the BIA no longer manages for the allottee. These parcels are subject to the FRPA and should be treated the same as any other privately owned land.
